

According to plato, the powerful in service are obligated to serve the weak. If you allow domination, soon the weaker snakes hiding in the skirts of the powerful (within that circle) will control the weak. Thus the powerful and weak in the end are doomed. No one is looking behind as they are blinded by the prospects of the future.